

New Detective Training

February 12 - 13, 2020 • Murray, Utah

This new detective course is intended to make the participants recognize the importance of basic investigative techniques that are often overlooked or not given the proper level of importance in the face of newer technologies and investigative techniques. This class also gives an introduction to 4th and 5th Amendment issues encountered by detectives and the importance of striving for and maintaining the highest quality of investigation in all cases. It also introduces the detective to the dynamics of interacting with victims and their family members.

Participants will be instructed that there is nothing more destructive to a crime scene or criminal investigation than making early assumptions about the scene and the nature of the investigation. The participants will be taught to treat every violent crime scene as a possible murder investigation and to not allow preconceptions and personal theories to influence their actions or the manner in which they handle the crime scene and investigation.
